

The Light From
the Little Star
That Isn't There

Quoted
Citizen: Well, sonny, did you do good deed today?
Scout: Yes, me and four other scouts took an old lady across the street.
Citizen: Five of you to take an old lady across the street?
Scout: Yeah, she didn't want to go; we carried her.

None of us around these parts understands the higher reaches of science. We don't know how the atom and hydrogen bombs actually work, but we accept their awful power as a regretful fact. The authority of science is too well demonstrated to be refuted by words.

Perhaps the scientific demonstration that is best understood by all the people is the astronomer's measurement of the stars, their size, their distance from the earth, and the schedule of their movement through space. An eclipse is forecast to the exact second; an oncoming comet is heralded some years in advance, and arrives at the precise moment the astronomer said it would.

Therefore we aren't inclined to accept the young Swiss astronomer Paul Wild in his analysis of what he has found while probing the skies through one of the Mt.
Palomar (Calif.) telescopes.

Wild discovered an exploding star in what astronomers call Galaxy NGC 5508, and he reports, with scientific backing, that the light he looked at left that star 20 million years ago. Since light travels at the rate of 6 million miles a year, the star's distance from earth must be 6 million times 20 million — at which point we are fresh out of ciphers.

But, the distance factor is less important than that curious statement about illimitable time — 20 million years ago!

For all any one knows, most of the stars that we see staring at us as cold hard facts out of the night sky may have vanished ages ago, telegraphing us their delayed light, while new stars have succeeded to their place but whose light won't be seen until a million generations from now.

The night show that we see in the starry sky, therefore, although fact to astronomers and other men of science, actually is a masterful show of phantom and illusion. We are not looking at real objects — only the light from the place where they were, so many million years ago that is doubtful if our own world was then inhabited.

I believe it is said that this imponderable factor of astronomical time is what led Einstein to his equation on the Fourth Dimension. I personally never had any need for a fourth dimension — until one day I read that if a group of rocket-men took off for a distant star and were gone from earth 100 years they themselves would be only 65 years older when they got back . . . and not even Einstein's theory would have helped me digest that one.

Science measures the universe — but the more measuring it does the surer the rest of us are that some Supreme Being eludes man's calculations. We foretell when the comet will arrive, or the eclipse will take place; but our reading of the timetable isn't half as wonderful as the One who set up the universe and keeps it running with split-second precision.

And so in conclusion, there is the comforting thought that in the same probing of atomic mysteries which has brought down upon men new engines of unimaginable destruction there will eventually be discovered the means to neutralize them.

For science itself says the universe is an orderly system of checks and balances.

Nun Lies About Age, Pennance Is Suicide

BADDESLEY CLINTON, England — Sister Antony, a nun of the barefoot Order of Poor Clares, once lied about her age. As pennance she soaked her silk cloth robs in kerosene and burned herself to death.

A group of sisters found the aged woman's body last Monday in an outbuilding of the secluded Roman Catholic convent here. Yes, today a coroner's court moved inside the convent walls to a vesti-giate Sister Antony's death.

Brown-clad nuns sat weeping in the improvised courtroom as their chaplain the Rev. John Dale, told the dead sister's story.

"Two days before her death," he said, "Sister Antony came to me and said she felt very guilty.
I asked what was wrong and she told me that many years ago she had given the date of her birth on an insurance form as 1891, whereas she knew it was 1894.

"I told her it was ridiculous," he said, "but she seemed to think it was a heinous crime. She told me her whole 27 years here had been one huge lie or worse."

The coroner commented: "To those who live in the outside world this discrepancy would have been of little significance. To her in the high religious standard of her life in the convent, it was great trouble."

The verdict: suicide while of unsound mind.

Tomb of Pharaoh Who Ruled Egypt 5000 Years Ago Found Intact, Archeologist Claims

By ROBERT HEWETT

CAIRO — An Egyptian archeologist says he has discovered what is apparently the oldest intact royal tomb ever found in Egypt. It is believed to be that of Pharaoh Sanhet, who ruled the Nile kingdom about 4,000 years ago.

The find was announced last night by Zakaria Goseim, chief inspector of the Egyptian Antiquities Department. He said the rock tomb containing a sarcophagus of red dish alabaster was found under the ruins of a step pyramid at Sakkara, about 15 miles south of Cairo.
Goseim expects to find the golden coffin of Sanhet, a pharaoh of ancient Egypt's Third Dynasty, inside the sarcophagus. Sanhet ruled Egypt around 3,000 B. C.
The Sakkara pyramid is located only about 20 miles from the site near the great pyramid at Giza where antiquarians are uncovering two solar boats, presumably built by the later Fourth Dynasty Pharaoh Cheops to carry his soul through the heavens after death.

Goseim said his find is "undoubtedly the most important since the discovery of King Tutankhamen's tomb in 1922."

It may be even more important, he added, because a Sanhet preceded King Tut by about 1,200 years.

Of the many ancient royal burial places located in Egypt only those of King Tut, one of the rulers of the 18th Dynasty, and some of the 22nd Dynasty kings have been uncovered intact. The rest had all been plundered by ancient grave robbers who stripped them of their gold and jewels.

"It was only by lucky chance that this tomb escaped being looted," Goseim said. The archeolo-gist has been digging at Sakkara since 1951. He unearthed the ruins of the unfinished pyramid there last December.

He said the sarcophagus is about 2 1/2 feet long and slightly over 2 feet wide. The top is of solid alabaster and the mummy was placed inside through an aperture in the end. This opening was closed by a sliding alabaster panel.

"We can expect to find inside the alabaster sarcophagus a coffin of solid gold, or possibly a coffin covered with thick sheets of gold."

Arkansans Urge Vocation School Funds

WASHINGTON — Four Arkansians yesterday strongly urged the House Appropriations Subcommittee to increase funds for vocational education, instead of going along with President Eisenhower's recommended slash in the funds.

The subcommittee is considering a bill to provide money for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Arkansas Reps. Harris, Trimble and Gathings, Democrats, and Lewis J. Johnson vice president of the Arkansas Farmers Union, appeared before the subcommittee.

Congress last year voted $18,673, 281 for vocational education, but President Eisenhower recommended that figure be trimmed to 17 1/2 million for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Johnson told the subcommittee that Arkansas stood to lose $27, 000 if the President's recommendation were followed and he added that "Arkansas schools cannot afford to lose one penny of school funds."

GENEVA — Always a city famed for international intrigue and just plain spying, Geneva today has a cloak and dagger atmosphere revealed by few cities in modern times.

The reasons are obvious:
The Swiss are neutral and intend to remain that way. Hence, they are interested in just about every thing and everybody.

The Russians are here by the scores and one can be sure their Intelligence and Counterintelligence Corps are well represented.
Later arrivals in the arena of international politics, the Red Chinese and the Koreans obviously have their gumshoe squads. And the fact that Geneva has plenty of anti-Communist Chinese and anti-Communist Koreans is making them all ultra careful.

The British and French are quieter with their spying and counterspying, but this does not mean they are less effective. The Americans can certainly be said to have their cloaks, if not their daggers, hanging in the dark halls of this city by the bright blue lake.

Strange things are happening and there is a whisper behind the spotted palm of every hotel lobby.
A high-placed delegate went see another one. They had confidential matters to discuss. The man who made the call was surprised when he saw five men in the room — the man he'd come to see, and four others.

"It's all right," said the host.
"We can talk in freedom."
As the caller opened his discussion, each of the four unidentified men in the room, marched to a corner, unfolded a newspaper and

Rebels Gain Access to Road Leading to Hanoi

By LOUIS GUILBERT

HANOI, Indochina (UP)—French Union troops today abandoned the post of Cho Noi under heavy Communist assault, giving Red rebels access to the road leading to the Hanoi-Haiphong lifeline.

A second rebel force swept into the Catholic village of Koan Phon Gha on the coast 60 miles southeast of Hanoi and seized a seminary for priests after hand-to-hand battle with Catholic militiamen.

The French high command said Cho Noi had been under attack for a week and was abandoned during the Red's eighth attack.

Every night during the last several days French aircraft have bombed and machine-gunned rebel positions around Cho Noi's barbed wire barricades in an effort to save the post because of its position in regard to the railway and highway connecting Hanoi and the port of Haiphong.

A Communist force estimated at battalion strength moved in last night with mortars, bazookas and heavy machine guns, forcing the garrison commander to withdraw the defenders toward Hungyen on the Red river.

The French high command said Communist losses were "heavy" in the attacks on Cho Noi.

Two Communist battalions took part in the attack on the Catholic community on the coast. High command spokesmen said the militiamen defended the seminary floor by floor and room by room.

The rebels withstood air and artillery fire and crept into the seminary, largest building in the community, and gained control of the ground floor.

After 30 minutes of hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets, knives, gunnades, burp guns and even furniture, the Communists got up to the second floor.

Smoke and fire poured from all of the building's windows and savage yells punctuated the din of gunfire in an hours-long battle for the third floor.

The Reds finally seized the entire building. Heavy losses were reported on both sides.

Koan Phon Gha is in the center of a coastal region at the extreme south of the Red River delta, which has about 1,000,000 Catholic, fiercely anti-rebel inhabitants.

Two Deaths Boost Arkansas Toll

By The Associated Press
Two fatalities in the past 24 hours raised to eight Arkansas violent death toll since last Sunday midnight.

Billy Marchetti, 13, of Lake Village, died yesterday of electric shock. The youth touched an electric wire under his father's store while retrieving a baseball.

Floyd H. Steed 69-year-old foster employee at the Naval Ammunition Depot, died in a Camden hospital yesterday of accident injuries. Steel was injured last Friday in a car-truck collision at Rocky Hill, Ark.

$500,000 Fire Loss in Town of England

ENGLAND — A fire which destroyed six business houses in this central Arkansas town last night broke out again this morning but firemen brought it under control within a matter of minutes.

The flames flared anew amid the damaged stock of the Sacony Men's Store, one of two business establishments damaged in last night's fire. The roof of the store building collapsed, and buried most of the store's stock beneath it.

Origin of the flames isn't known.
Various estimates placed the loss at close to $500,000.

Firemen from Stuttgart, North Little Rock and Pine Bluff combined with England volunteer firefighters to control the blaze about 12:45 a. m. today. It started about 9:30 last night.

Three firemen escaped injury when a wall collapsed.

England is about 20 miles southeast of Little Rock.

Destroyed were Adams Cafe, Blackie's Barber Shop, Sterling dime store, Kennedy Drug Store, Kennedy-Duncan Furniture Store, and Federated Dry Goods Store.

Firemen speculated that the blaze started in the second floor of the Sterling store and burned for about 30 minutes before it was discovered.

Alterations Likely Yet for Housing Bill

By JOHN W. FINNE

WASHINGTON (UP) — My legislators indicated today the administration's housing bill would be somewhat watered-down and altered by the time it is ready for the President's signature.

The Senate shouted down a Southern Democratic move to savage the President Eisenhower's public housing proposals and then in near-record time passing most of his overall measure recommendations.

It was one of the administration's brightest victories in the current session. But it won't be final until House and Senate conference meet next Friday to iron out the differences between the House and Senate versions of the measure.

Congressional horse trading in the conference appeared likely to reduce the 140,000-unit public housing program and alter some of the President's other recommendations.

The Senate approved its housing bill by a voice vote after three hours of debate.

The Southern Democratic move to kill all public housing stemmed from fears growing out of a Supreme Court anti-segregation ruling.
It was led by Sen. Burnett R.
Maybank (D-SC).

Sees Class First Time at Graduation

PITTSBURGH — Betty Sheaf-er met her classmates last night for the first time when she received her high school diploma.

Betty's appearance at the nearby Stowe Township High School commencement program was the first time the 22-year-old girl had even been inside a school.

She is afflicted with a rare disease that has made her almost as brittle as a china doll.

Her family says doctors have a name for it, but the simple explanation is that her bones are unable to store sufficient calcium.

Careful as she and her family have been, she's sustained more than 100 bone fractures. Her worst misadventure several years ago came when she was dropped while being carried to a taxi. That time, she suffered multiple fractures of her right arm, and since then, has had to be in a wheel chair.

Her grandmother taught her at home for the first four years of her schooling. Then the township school board arranged to have a teacher visit her twice a week.

She has learned to operate a typewriter and now hopes to do secretarial work at home.

$1.9 Billion Voted for Labor and Welfare

By WILLIAM FARBERGAS

WASHINGTON — The House Appropriations Committee today voted to give the Labor, Education and Welfare Department $1,900,000,000 in new cash to finance them in the fiscal year starting July 1.

This is only $16,300,000 less than a year ago, when the committee recommended $1,916,300,000.

The committee's recommendations were embodied in a bill drafted by a subcommittee headed by Rep. Busbey (R.-Ill.) and sent to the House floor for debate next week.

It was the ninth of 11 annual departmental appropriation bills presented to the House. The House has passed eight others and the Senate has passed one. Only one has been sent to the President.

Today's bill allotted the Labor Department $288,704,000 of the $299,635,000 it requested through the President; the Department of Health, Education and Welfare $1,637,015,011 of the $1,632,509,261 it requested; the National Labor Relations Board $8,400,000 of the $8,700,000 it asked; the National

Way Cleared to Publish Some of Telephone Talks

By RAYMOND LAHR and HERBERT FOSTER

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senators today cleared the way for publishing some of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens' telephone talks about his troubles with Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Prospect was as dim as ever, however, that the particular monitored calls which have generated the most heat in the 27 days of Army-McCarthy hearings would ever see the light of day.

Virtually all of the 27 transcripts of monitored calls between Stevens and Army Counselor John C. Adams, Stevens and Maj. Gen.
Kirke B. Lawton, the commander of Fort Monmouth, N. J., Stevens and Roy M. Cohen, and between Adams and Francis J. Gary.

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.- Wis.) and Army Special Counsel Joseph N. Welch agreed during private huddle that records of monitored talks between Stevens and individual members of the investigating subcommittee, including McCarthy, could be published after the record is made public.

This, however, would be based on the opinion of the individual senators. How many calls might be made public was uncertain.

Welch and McCarthy agreed would be a futile to continue wagging over the calls that did not involve senators.

The investigating subcommittee spent most of the morning arguing and quarreling about the telephone records which have periodically stalled the proceedings to date.

It was agreed to call the Stevens' secretarial aide to make further identification of calls after these developments.

The McCarthy-Welch agreement that McCarthy's position as a May 17 presidential secretary order would prevent making the Stevens' monitored calls public, McCarthy has opposed making the calls public by Cohen and Gary.

DOROTHY DIX

Parental Ban On Friends

Dear Miss Dix: I have so many troubles and urgently need someone to talk to but there's no one to listen. I feel all alone in the world; I never really want to do anything wrong, but at 16 I seem to have made so many mistakes I doubt if I'll ever straighten out.

I have always wanted friends, but my folks didn't understand that, and thought I should be content to remain at home as Mommy's little girl. I have two older brothers and one younger sister. All though grade school I was so bashful none of the other kids would ever be friendly. When I got to high school I found the boys and girls entirely different. They tried to make friends with me, but whenever I thought I had a pal, Mom wouldn't let me bring her home. Then I began to sneak out to make excuses and go out with the gang after school.

Unfortunately, I got in with the wrong crowd, and soon began to smoke and drink so I could keep up with them. I didn't take me too long to realize that this wasn't what I wanted. I wanted a "best friend" to whom I could confide all my dreams, and other friends with whom to dance, skate, and bowl, and talk. That is what my parents denied me, though they gave me everything else I wanted. Now, what can I do? I see now where I was wrong, but how can I live the normal life of a teen-ager when my own parents are against it?

Answer: You have been given the grace to know and acknowledge your wrongdoing, and to realize that it certainly didn't improve your life. Your conduct should become part of a past that never will be resurrected.

From early childhood on, everyone wants friends. For parents to deny the blessing of companionship to their children is a grave mistake. Friendships should be encouraged. The girl or boy who makes friends easily has been blessed with a gift that should never be abused. Since your parents are apparently adamant to your arguments regarding your social needs, try enlisting the help of an older person. Your own brothers should be of some assistance. Ask them to intercede for you. A schoolteacher, or Sunday School teacher also may have enough interest to change your parents' attitude. The mother of one of your school friends might know your mother well enough to bring tactful attention to your plight. Don't hesitate to ask any of these older people for help; if your own family has closed ears where you've concerned someone else must champion your cause. Just be sure that never again will you get into bad company.

Dear Miss Dix: How does one go about winning a man? I've read many articles on the subject and have put every bit of advice to the test, but to no avail. I'm 23 and desperately in love with a man a bit older. We've been going out together for seven months—but still no proposal. I'm a good listener, interested in everything my boy friend does; I praise him, compliment him, tell him how much I appreciate him and how lucky I am to have him. Yet, he says I'm all wrapped up in myself.

Answer: Your young man sounds like an insufferably conceited, selfish creature. He'll accept all the adulation you'll give him; apparently he's already gotten quite a bit. He's just not for you, Kitty, and, desperate though you may be, you'd better give him up before he beats you to it.

Dear Miss Dix: A young friend of mine is an unmarried mother. Her baby is to be christened and she was told that since she isn't married only the godparents can hold the child. Is this correct? ADELE began reading aloud. This presumably would find any recording device.

Answer: The godparents hold the baby at any christening, regardless of the mother's marital status, so the situation is no reflection on your friend.

While the two principals talked the four men kept reading. When they finished, shook hands and said goodbye the four men folded their newspapers and walked quietly away.

Another delegation here is armed with antilisting machines. These make a queer noise when turned on and are said to guarantee that the conversation in the room cannot be heard.

There is another delegation that holds most of its private conversations in bathrooms — with the water running — which is, said to be a sure way of making certain your conversation isn't being listened to nor recorded.

A plumber who had to call at Chou Enlai's villa to make a minor repair was met at the door by security guards, and accompanied to the room by them and his every motion was watched by two Chinese who stood only a yard away.

Nearly everyone assumes that someone is reading all the mail coming in and going out of Geneva.

For this reason the weather is a great subject of comment.

One wife wrote back to her delegate husband, "Thanks for your letters. Geneva's weather must be wonderful, but isn't there anything else of interest there?"

The press center has been dubbed the "House of Rumors." You can start one here and 15 minutes later you can hear it repeated to you at a hotel bar.

With so many delegations in town as delegates to the conference, and at least a dozen others having representatives as unofficial "observers," keeping them straight becomes difficult.

One visitor swears he has made several telephone calls and when asked what delegation he represents, invariably replies: "I m m r. So and so from the state of chaos."

He says the telephone operator, just as invariably replied: "Just a moment, I'll put you through."

Puerto Ricans to Trial for House Shooting

WASHINGTON (M) — A jury of seven men and five women was chosen in just under an hour today to hear the case of the four Puerto Ricans who shot up the House of Representatives last March 1.

Only 12 prospective jurors were challenged — nine of them by the defense. None of the jurors was a resident of the District of Columbia, or whether they were prejudiced because of what they read or heard about the shooting spree in which five congressmen were wounded. Trouble in picking a jury had been anticipated because of the great publicity given the shootings.

Stony-faced Lolita Lebron, 31, self-styled ringleader of the Puerto Rican Nationalist quartet, made an attempt to speak up as the trial opened before U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

"As she was identified to the court, Mrs. Lebron began, 'May I say...'

She was shushed by defense counsel, and eased back into her chair. As she sat down she muttered, 'I'm sorry.'

Mrs. Lebron and her three male colleagues Rafael Cancel Miranda, Andres Figueroa Cordero and Irving Flores Rodriguez had been held in jail, in lieu of bonds of $100,000 each charged on five counts each with assault with intent to kill.

Cancel, a towering six-footer, sat beside Mrs. Lebron, who was trim in a light gray suit and low-heeled patent leather pumps.

WASHINGTON (M) — Four Puerto Ricans go on trial today with the job of jury selecting made doubly difficult by the heavy news coverage of their wild shooting spree March 1 in the House of Representatives.

Five congressmen were wounded when the Puerto Rican Nationalists, led by stony-faced Lolita Lebron, 31, splattered the House chamber with bullets from the visitors' gallery.

Pleas of innocent were entered for Mrs. Lebron and her three male colleagues — Rafael Cancel Miranda, Andres Figueroa Cordero and Irving Flores Rodriguez — at their arraignment March 5.

They are charged on five counts each with assault with intent to kill and on five counts each with assault with a dangerous weapon. Jailed with bonds set at $100,000 each — an amount none was able to raise each faces a maximum possible sentence of 75 years in prison.

They lifted the hood of Sherm's car and peered inside while he tried to start. When it wouldn't catch, Sherm stuck his head out of the window.

"I've got a hunch," he said. "Trouble's in the ig..."

"Listen!"

They heard it for only a second, then the sound was gone.

"Prowl car," Chub said uneasily. "We'd better make tracks."

Link said quickly pulling down the hood of Sherm's car. "Let's peel out."

"Hey," Sherm protested. "What about me?"

"Ride with me," Link ordered. "Come on."

"Aw, don't want to leave my room..."

"We'll come back for it. Come on!"

Ricky stood by trying to look cool and relaxed and doing his thumbs hooked in his belt. He wasn't going to let Link take the lead away from him. "We'll take you and your car, Sherm. I'll nerf you."

"You'll be caught," Link said. "Maybe. You other guys get gone. Meet you at the north city limits. We'll go west row, and circle. See you!"

He sprinted for his car and peeled it around in a tight circle, coming in behind Sherm. The others were already on their way. With Ricky pushing, Sherm turned west, and then Ricky opened up as they fled for the city limits.

Ricky didn't take any chances — on being caught by the cops. He pushed fast, and before many blocks he was showing Sherm ahead at better than 60. He was slightly to the left of center behind Sherm, so he could be around him, and that tended to twist Sherm, but Ricky knew Sherm could handle the car, and he bore down.

They flew across the city line with the sound of the police siren behind him. Sherm's hand went up in the air, to signal for a right turn. Ricky backed off, giving Sherm a chance to slow down and make the turn. He followed, feeling his wheels leave paving and hit dirt. Then Sherm signaled him up again, and he made contact and pushed Sherm again.

He knew why Sherm had chosen the dirt road. As the two cars sped swaying over the rough surface, they raised a thick cloud of dust, a choking blinding screen that would shield them.

Ricky himself was almost blinded, but he kept his eyes glued to Sherm's tail lights. Sherm would give the brakes a warning feather touch if he had to, but there were always emergencies. A bad break and they'd have to dig him out of the back of Sherm's neck with a maul.

Ricky chanced a glance to the rear, but there was no sign of other auto lights. He slowed his rate of speed, and in a little while Sherm signaled for another turn. Again Ricky backed off and followed Sherm into a long, tree-lined drive that ended at a farm house. They turned off their lights and parked in the shadows, where the dark cars melted into the night. Ricky turned off his engine.

The two boys got out of their cars, stretching, wiping dust from their eyes, chuckling softly. The night was still. There were no sounds of pursuit.

"Well, we done her," Sherm said.

convention in the form of a supplemental report by the convention's Christian Life Commission.

The Rev. Dr. Miller, executive secretary of the commission, said "We simply stated that we believed the decision to be in harmony with the basic Democratic principles of the constitution and also in harmony with the fundamental teaching of the Christian religion."

"It sums up to this," he said, "in view of the fact that the decision already has been made we urge our people to be good citizens in conforming to it as the basic law of the land and to be good Christians in the kind of attitude they assume toward it."

Faith will overcome the most miserable circumstances every hour

...should be everybody's theme song. Time is a graph or chart which measures what we are. We have no time to kill. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," Eccles. 9:10. Constantly strive to be a better father, mother, husband, wife, son, daughter... a better church member. There is always a friend or neighbor less fortunate than you. "He that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin," James 4:17. If you have had a kindness shown, pass it on; 'twas not meant for you alone... pass it on.

ABOVE ALL, "every hour" is God's gift. Wasting time is wasting God's Bounty. Keep on killing time and time will kill you. "Every man must give an account of himself to God," Romans 14:12. Spend your spare time at home, at Church or on errands of mercy... "I Need Thee Every Hour."

Harding Starts 36th Year as Most Honored

SEARCHY UP) —Harding College embarked on its 36th year to day with a triple recognition award and the name of "the most honored college in the nation."

The awards were presented at the beginning of the school's 35th anniversary celebration here yesterday by Dr. Kenneth Wells president of the Freedoms Foundation. Dr. Wells said Harding was the most honored school in the nation because it was the only institution of any type to be so honored. The awards went to the national education program, sponsored by Harding; to Dr. George S. Benson, college president, and to the school for five successive years of recognition by the foundation. Earlier, Thomas F. Patton, vice president of Republic Steel Corp., described Harding College's mission as "a crusade which is fountainhead of freedom."

Patton was the principal speaker at the dedication of eight new buildings on the campus. He said the new buildings were "an endorsement of the fine work the college is doing."

Gov. Francis Cherry and State Education Commissioner Arch Ford also spoke at the dedication ceremonies.
